Wage and Hour Mistakes in Self-Storage:

Minimizing Employer Liability Thursday, April 5 from 10:00 to 10:50 AM

Labor laws concerning wages are changing rapidly. Not only are federal and state labor departments increasing investigative resources, private wage-and-hour lawsuits are on the rise and costly to defend. KD partner in the Long Island office, Ellen Storch, will discuss areas of exposure facing self-storage owners. She'll also offer suggestions on how to comply with wage requirements and minimize liability in the event of a lawsuit.

You'll learn:

- Why you may need to increase salaries for exempt employees
- How to correctly classify employees as exempt (salaried) or nonexempt (overtime eligible)
- How to properly document payment obligations to resident managers
- Best practices for tracking employee time
- How to lawfully minimize overtime costs
