The number of public enforcement actions announced by the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau in the third quarter was significantly higher than it has been in a while. Was this the result of a new enforcement push within the CFPB or was it just a blip on the radar? How should companies in the accounts receivable management industry react?

Join a panel of leading compliance experts as they dissect and analyze the CFPB's recent enforcement actions and share their perspectives about what it means for the industry going forward.
